

Do you have questions about

lichen sclerosis?

Tell us by taking part in the Lichen Sclerosis Priority Setting Partnership!

What is the Lichen Sclerosis Priority Setting Partnership?

There is a need for further research into lichen sclerosis. This project has been set up to identify and prioritise research questions that are of importance to people affected by lichen sclerosis and health professionals involved in their care.

Who should take part?

- People with lichen sclerosis
- Their parents, carers or partners
- Healthcare professionals
- Other treatment providers

Who is running the survey?

The Lichen Sclerosis Priority Setting Partnership is an independent group of patients and health professionals. The project is funded by the British Society for the Study of Vulval Disease and overseen by the James Lind Alliance.

To access the survey go to:

nottingham.ac.uk/go/LSPSP

Contact: LSPSP@nottingham.ac.uk

In collaboration with:

University of Nottingham
UK | CHINA | MALAYSIA

